Policy on the development of Māori capacity

Policy on relationships with Māori

The Local Government Act 2002 contains a range of provisions regarding the relationship of local government with Māori. The intention of these new provisions is the facilitation of participation by Māori in the decision-making processes of local authorities.

In addition to the obligations within the Local Government Act, the Resource Management Act 1991 outlines specific obligations for Regional Councils regarding:

- Kaitiakitanga;
- The principles of the Treaty of Waitangi;
- The relationship between Māori and their culture; and
- Traditions and their ancestral lands, water, sites, wāhi tapu and other taonga.

In order to give effect to the obligations under the Local Government and Resource Management Acts, the Northland Regional Council will continue to work with Māori to enhance relationships and participation for Māori.

Set out below are the Northland Regional Council processes in place to give effect to these obligations and to develop Māori capacity to contribute to decision making.

Iwi liaison

Section 13 of the Council's Governance Statement details the key tasks of Council's Iwi Liaison policy, while section 12 outlines the Council's consultation policy including for consultation with Māori. A copy of the Governance Statement is available on the Council's website www.nrc.govt.nz/governance

The Council views the process of Iwi liaison as one of establishing and maintaining a close connection with Māori through clear processes for consultation and involvement in decision-making. By doing so, the Council recognises Māori as being a culturally distinct group with different perspectives from the wider community.

Relationships

Northland Regional Council realises the need to form transparent and responsive relationships in order for them to be meaningful. The Council will continue to work at all levels to establish and maintain relationships with Māori such as regular attendance at the Iwi/Council Chief Executives' Forum.

Treaty of Waitangi

A special relationship exists between Māori and the Crown through the signing of the Treaty of Waitangi. The Treaty cements the relationship between the Crown and Māori as Treaty partners.

The Council will continue to work with the Office of Treaty Settlements by way of provision of information and, where relevant, contributing to investigations of various settlement instruments during the negotiation of claims. Where such settlements have been passed into legislation, the Council will enact any legislative requirements of them or directions from the Minister, such as Memorandum of Understanding.

Provision of information

Northland Regional Council recognises that in order for Māori to effectively contribute to the decision-making process of Council, it is essential that relevant information is provided to support this process.

By providing information, the Council acknowledges it needs to be aware that it is relevant, clear and provided in a timely fashion in a manner that is appropriate. Further information relating to the level of service can be found on page 120.

Contribute to decision-making and capacity building

The Northland Regional Council will continue to provide opportunities for Māori to gain knowledge of Council processes and to support avenues for Māori to participate in the decision-making processes. The Council will also continue to recognise the special relationship Māori have with the natural and physical resources of the region.

Further opportunities on how the Council might foster this will be investigated through relationships with Iwi Authorities and by establishing collaborative relationships between Northland's three District Councils around Māori engagement.

Mutual respect

Northland Regional Council recognises that in order to have an enduring relationship with Māori that steps need to be put in place to ensure that elected representatives and staff have an opportunity to gain an appreciation of Māori Culture and Tikanga.

The Council will provide opportunities for education programmes relating to Māoritanga and to the Treaty of Waitangi in order for staff to gain an understanding of the needs and expectations of Māori in relation to the Local Government and Resource Management Acts.
